

The FCC should be able to reasonably adjust its fees it charges for initial vanity callsign applicants in the amateur radio service based upon actually incurred administrative costs. However, no fees should be charged for the renewal of an amateur callsign as no additional post-renewal cost should be incurred by the FCC when compared with systemically assigned callsigns. Vanity fees should thus only apply to the initial license term of a vanity callsign. Further, subsequent to the initial license term, no distinction should be made between vanity calls and systemically assigned calls.